PRICE FIVE CENTS

COMPARISON OF TARIFF REVENUES

NEARLY TWENTY FIVE MILLION LOST FROM INCREASED FREE LIST

ESTIMATED TOTAL INCOME

The Income Tax of Eighty Millions With the Heavily Increased Duties on Luxuries Will Make Up Deficit

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The Senate committee table shows the rates of the Underwood tariff bill averages an advalorem of thirty-two and ninety-nine hundredths per cent against forty-three and sixty-four hundredths per cent of the Payne law. The estimated loss of revenue from the increased free list would be twenty-four millions seven hundred thousand dollars.

The total tariff revenue is estimated at three hundred and forty-seven millions, with eighty millions for the income tax. The sundries schedules where Democrats taxed or increased the taxation of luxuries, the average was raised from twenty-five to thirty-three per cent.

The decrease in the wool revenue is estimated from twenty-seven to thirteen millions. The sugar revenue is now sixty millions, will drop twenty millions annually for three years.

BERWICK, Me., June 9.—Berwick today began a celebration of its two hundredth anniversary and the festivities will continue through the greater part of the week. The settlement of the town whose ancient name was Newchawannock was begun in 1627 but it was not until June 9, 1713, that the town was incorporated.

DECISION IN THE STATE RATE CASES

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The attorney general summarizes the Supreme Court decision on the Minnesota state rate case. The court holds that Congress has not deprived the states of the authority of fixing the maximum interstate rates, and burden of proof rests upon the railroad collecting the State rate, alleged confederacy.

The decision held the proof established the Minneapolis and St. Louis rates as discriminatory; Great Northern and Northern Pacific rates not proven.

TO COMPETE WITH PENNSYLVANIA COAL

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 9.—With the arrival here today of the first large car load from the Alabama fields by the all-water route, a mighty rival is ready to grapple with Pennsylvania for the fuel market in the lower Mississippi. Giant dredges have at last opened a great inland highway into New Orleans which, in a large measure, overcomes the advantages which nature gave the coal companies along the Monongahela. The shipment that arrived today is small, but it is believed to be the forerunner of millions of tons and to mark the accomplishment of one of the most important commercial achievements in this section since the end of the Civil War.

It is not alone the New Orleans market that is now concentrating the attention of the great coal concern on this port. Within a few months the Panama canal will be a reality. With the converging of many steamship lines coal will be trimmed into bunkers at an enormous rate at the isthmus. Owing to its proximity, New Orleans experts to get the lion's share of this business. Combined with the additional exports that will come with the development of the west coast of Central and South America, the reason for the tense situation in the coal industry becomes apparent.

Conservatism has held the whip hand on the coal situation in the lower Mississippi valley for generations. The cost of bringing coal down with the current was so small that there was no chance for successful competition. Then coal was found in Alabama, but high costs of transportation offset the advantage of its proximity. The outlook changed, however, when a water route from Alabama was shown to be possible. The new route is through newly dredged channels through the Tombigbee and the Alabama rivers into the Mississippi Sound, and thence to New Orleans by a short cut through Lake Borgne and the canal connecting the lake with the river.

SUPREME COURT UP HOLDS SHERMAN LAW
By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—Convictions of five officials of the turpentine trust were set aside by the Supreme Court because of error in instructions by the trial judge.

The Supreme Court decision to day upholds the constitutionality of the Sherman antitrust law as a criminal statute. Sentences against turpentine trust were not made because of the trial judge delivering an erroneous instruction, but the rule of reason doesn't make forbidden acts an indefinite bar to prosecution.

Alma-Tadema Sale

LONDON, June 9.—Art dealers and collectors from many countries were on hand today at the opening of the auction of the art treasures of Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, the English painter, the collection having been dispersed in London in 1901.

It includes a number of paintings by the master that adorned the Alma-Tadema home in Bayswater.

A panel was exhibited by Sir Lawrence as a mark of admiration and affection for his commander-in-chief.

Next to the picture the most interesting object in the collection is the famous "Antonine" grand piano, which is covered in a specially designed case lined with mahogany, ebony, ivory, pearl and tortoise shell.

Inside the case are silver and ivory instruments.

Also a number of drawings by Alma-Tadema's time.

LOBBY COMMITTEE BEGAN INQUIRY

MAJORITY OF COMMITTEE BELIEVE SOME CLUES HAVE BEEN FOUND

SOME ADMITTED INTEREST

A Former Senator and Several Congressmen Admitted Interest in Legislation But Denied Their Cause Unjust

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The Senate investigating committee this evening began an inquiry into the pursuits of persons attempting to influence legislation. The majority of the committee is convinced that signs have been discovered of working an underground lobby and believes patient search will reveal the trail leading to the quarry.

Minority members are not so confident that the insidious lobby is in Washington to influence legislation but denied their cause to be unjust or their actions improper. Senator Reed was the principal investigator and tried to develop many Washington men who have been occupied convincing congress it is wrong about particular legislation.

WILL STILL BE ONE OF DOMINANT INTERESTS THROUGHOUT PANHANDLE

STOCK INDUSTRY WILL CONTINUE

WILL STILL BE ONE OF DOMINANT INTERESTS THROUGHOUT PANHANDLE

FARMING WILL INCREASE IT

Stinnett in Panhandle Fair Series

Calls Attention to Worth and Importance of Building Silos.

(A. S. STINNETT)

With the many million acres of land in the Panhandle the livestock industry, as it is now, will continue to be one of the dominant interests and industries.

I take the position, and I believe accurately, that with all the increasing farm operations and tillage of the soil that may take place hereafter, the livestock interests will be immensely broadened in extent and scope and heightened in profits from every standpoint conceivable. The value of all meat animals has risen to a new high level, and statistics that are authentic point to the permanency of this level, if not a further material rise, and all this implies that in the future there should and must be a better animal, such as a one as will attain to the greatest weight in the shortest time, and this can only be accomplished by breeding up and then finishing the animal to that degree that it will go to the slaughter with the maximum weight and quality of flesh.

This can only be accomplished with care and application and thru the greatest abundance of the most nutritious grain and forage available on every hand at the minimum of cost, and this leads to the conclusion that the progressive and successful ranchman will have the option of producing and supplying his own grain and forage, or of deriving it from the abundance of farmer nearby.

It also leads to the conclusion that every farmer not having a sufficient supply of livestock of his own can, with a few silos and his bountiful cereal and forage crops, secure on advantageous and profitable terms all the livestock possible for him to handle.

The economy of the silo has at last dawned upon Panhandle farmers and ranchmen, and silos are now going up as if by magic over the entire Panhandle, and with the unfailing crops, perfectly adapted, there is unmistakable promise of an amount of increase within the next year or two equal to the requirements of multiplied thousands of cattle, sheep and hogs.

This will be an incentive for all farmers to engage in the handling and feeding of livestock to the extent of their ability, and at the same time enable many of the larger ranches to engage in the full feeding, wherein as has been proven lies the largest profits in the livestock industry. While the Panhandle ranchmen have made good profits in the cattle business the last several years it must be admitted that a large per cent of such profits have been speculative, and resulted from the continued rise in the market value.

On the other hand, there is another class of cattle dealers operating in the grain states of Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Illinois, who have made still greater profits in their annual purchases of Panhandle cattle, that have been shipped to the big states where they were fattened and finished for the slaughter. With the development of the Panhandle agriculture there will perhaps be a very limited number of livestock of any kind that will leave the Panhandle for the feed lots of other states, and this would mean addition to the Panhandle wealth of sums running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars every year.

Showing ones admit that the time is now at hand when cattle will not be bought and sold at a given price per head, as heretofore, but on basis of price per pound. This would cover all cattle over the scales; and draw earnest attention to the better care and feeding of the cattle.
